

BLAST POWER SERVICES LTD

Privacy Policy

Customers data we collect:

Blast Power Services Ltd collects customers information provide to us by the customer, such as name(s), company name, address, email address and contact phone number(s).

Why we collect, hold and use this information:

To enable us to let you know your items are ready for collection, discuss the work with you, to invoice you for payment of work and if necessary to chase for non payment. In the event of non payment details may be passed on to a solicitor or debt collection agency to pursue non payment. Occasionally we will take photo's of items and display these either on our website or facebook page. We will not refer to who owns the items unless the customer has agreed.

Suppliers data we collect:

Blast Power Services Ltd collects suppliers information provide to us by the supplier, such as contact name, business name, address, email address, contact phone number and bank details.

Why we collect, hold and use this information:

To order goods/materials, to pay for good/materials and if necessary complain about good/materials. We may also passed your contact details onto our customers should they be looking for similar goods/materials. Your bank details will be passed on to our bank to enable us to pay by bacs/online.

Period data will be held:

All personal and company data will be held for the length of time the customer uses our services or we use the suppliers services and will be destroyed 7 years after the last use. The information will be removed from both paper and electronic storage.

Individuals Rights

Customers/Suppliers can request copies of the personal data that is held on them.

Customers/Suppliers can request that their data is amended, deleted or transferred to another person/business as long as we receive a written or emailed request from the individual.

Customers/Suppliers have the right to object to us holding their personal data however this may result is us being unable to complete the work for them.